To SCImago Team

I want to ask, what are the publication standards set by the LPP?
In January 2020 I sent an article and February 2020 was published by the LPP, a few weeks later, the LPP provided information that my article was withdrawn by the LPP due to a technical error. And the LPP explained that articles that had been published would be reviewed by the LPP editorial team.

In August 2020, information from the LPP that my article that was published was rejected and could not be published by the LPP because the article I sent was not by the focus of the LPP study. However, I was confused, my friend's article on political communication in Indonesia was published by the LPP, while my article on political communication in Indonesia was not published. If indeed the articles I have sent to the LPP since early 2020 are not suitable for publication in the LPP, the LPP should have informed me sooner, why were my articles abandoned without any notification, of course, this is detrimental to me, who took too long to get an answer from the LPP and suddenly got rejection.

The LPP does not seem to be taking the review process seriously, based on information from my friend who published his article on the LPP, apparently, there is no review process or improvement and notes from the LPP on the article manuscript. Suddenly his article appeared on the LPP. Sorry and please explain.

Thank you
Fathurrijal

P Pencari Ilmu 2 weeks ago

Hi Fathur, I also submitted my article to this journal several months ago. You know what? the editor's decision to reject my paper was made in no more than 24 hours! I was wondering if she had enough time to read my paper attentively. and voila! she just declined my article without any clear explanation! it was just a short notification that said that my paper was out of LPP's scope. so ridiculous... You know, it is far more difficult to publish our article in Indonesia's SINTA indexed journals. it can take months for reviewing process through the OJS system. Indonesian SINTA INDEX system is very good. we should proud of it.

ABSTRACT

The study investigated the availability, access and management of electronic information resources in Federal University of Agriculture library Abeokuta, Nigeria. The study adopted quantitative approach as research paradigm; with survey as research methods. Questionnaire was used as the primary instrument for data collection in which the researcher took 1.8% of the entire respondent population= 1447= 26. Twenty six (26) copies of the questionnaires were given to the respondents. Twenty three (23) copies were retrieved and analyzed; representing 88.50%. The entire non-academic staff was used as population of the study. From the findings of the study therefore, the influence of demographic variables (gender, age, education and professions) about the management of electronic information resources was not significant at the surveyed university library. Thus, the study recommended increased investment in electronic databases such as AGORA and African Journals, others include, MEDLINE, PubMed, Biomed Central, Online and HINARI, CAB Abstracts, BEAST CD, VET CD, and TEEAL etc ICT facilities, staff training and development at the surveyed university library to promote increase in the management of electronic information resources to satisfy the needs of users as ultimate goal of any library and information center.
