

The background of the slide is a light gray gradient, decorated with several realistic water droplets of various sizes. The droplets are rendered with soft shadows and highlights, giving them a three-dimensional appearance. They are scattered across the page, with a cluster of larger droplets in the top left and bottom right corners, and smaller ones in between.

And this is my revision of the reviewer request.

Thank you very much.

Reviewer(s)' Comments to Author:

- Can you please check the manuscript thoroughly for typos and grammatical errors. DONE
- Can you please give clear sub headings and spaces, to improve the layout and readability of the manuscript DONE
- Can you please provide tables of the biographical information, the questions posed, and subsequent coding used to analyse the data collected. For qualitative research, it is insufficient simply to include select quotations DONE

Questions and answers of this interview would be posed in Table 1.

- Also, for such a small sample, which is snowballed, rather than purposive (you may wish to amend how you have described this in the method, as I think that is what you have done) how can you generalise any of these findings, and where did you reach data saturation linked to the normative

Coverage	2010-ongoing
Scope	Launched in 2010, Journal of Islamic Marketing (JIMA) was the first journal dedicated to investigating Marketing's relationship with Islam, in theory and practice, across Muslim majority and minority geographies. JIMA tackles the nuances associated with Muslim consumption patterns, doing business in Muslim markets, and targeting Muslim consumers. When considering the acronyms for the emerging economies to watch: in 2001 it was BRIC (Brazil, Russia, India, and China); and more recently in 2013 MINT (Mexico, Indonesia, Nigeria, Turkey), and CIVETS (Columbia, Indonesia, Vietnam, Egypt, Turkey and South Africa) – then it is apparent that economies with large Muslim populations are growing in importance. One quarter of the world's population are Muslim, with well over half of Muslims today under the age of 25 - which
